

Switchword: POSTPONE

by Kat Miller

POSTPONE - stop pouting; let it go

Excepting "attractor" Switchwords, when POSTPONE is paired with almost any Switchword, it tends to enhance that Switchword. In other words, BLUFF may "dispel fear." When you add POSTPONE to BLUFF you are not only dispelling it, but you are also letting go of it. You are allowing yourself to release it.

When you use BLUFF alone it is clearing the current moment of fear. It is only working in the current moment. In the future, you may need to use BLUFF again when you enter a similar situation.

When you add POSTPONE to BLUFF, you are also letting it go. This means that in the future, when you enter a similar situation, the fear of such has been let go, and you should not need to keep using BLUFF.

Though on the surface there appears to be a subtle difference, when you add POSTPONE to another Switchword you may be substantially decreasing how often you need to use that Switchword in the future.

However, you may not want to pair POSTPONE with the attractor Switchwords such as ADD, COUNT, FIND, LOVE and WITH.

Why not?

Because POSTPONE is to "let go." When POSTPONE is paired with an attractor Switchword the two may wind up canceling each other out.

Following are some examples of POSTPONE Switchpairs:
